

CARELESS MOTORMEN BLAMED FOR CRASHES

characters to find the plan of responsible law-abiding citizens of the city and State. The Mayor is urged to insist that the Elevated man its cars with competent men and furnish adequate accommodations to women and children and eliminate the danger they are exposed to in using the public carriers as furnished by the Elevated Road.

Mayor Fitzgerald has expressed an official belief for the most pressing problem to be held on the Municipal Council.

Wednesday is hereby given the Central Labor Union to hold a mass meeting on the subject of the Elevated Road in the City of Boston on Monday between the hours of 2 and 4 o'clock.

James Maher, a striker, was today found guilty of assault on Delbert O. Williams, a new motorman, and was sentenced to six months in the House of Correction in Charlestown court. According to the evidence, Maher boarded a car and asked the driver to leave the car and help the strikers.

Striker Gets Three Months. Thomas Broderick, a striking conductor, was given three months in the House of Correction today for assault on Edward Burke, a "total" motorman. He was then fined $10 after being advised by the court of a $50 fine.

Broderick, who was charged with striking Burke, was today found guilty of assault on Burke and was sentenced to three months in the House of Correction in Charlestown court. According to the evidence, Broderick boarded a car and asked the driver to leave the car and help the strikers.

Strikers Declare Company is Holding Up Their Back Pay. The strike committee of the Elevated Road today declared that the Elevated Road is holding up back pay of the strikers to compel the company to return to work.

In line with the Elevated Road's policy of coercion, the officials of that company are holding up back pay of the wages of its striking conductors and motormen.

DON'T FORGET

SOME INCIDENTS OF THE STRIKE.

It isn't all trading and gloom in the Elevated strike.

A Harvard professor reported that he gave a street car conductor a quarter and got only a nickel back.

He protested the conductor replied: "You gave me ten cents and I gave you a nickel. You should be a gentleman and not ask for any more."

An excited man rushed into Cambridge police station and told the lieutenant a street car conductor had failed to ring up his fare. Then he went on hostily.

"When I asked for a transfer the conductor inquired: 'Where do you want to go?' I told him, and he went away. Pretty soon he came back with several newly-punched transfers in his hand and said: 'Here are some red ones and some green ones. Use as far as you like.'"

James Green, strike breaking conductor, went on a strike himself, on a car in Scollay square. His grievance was that he was making money faster than he could spend it.

Green got off the car and started away. "Hey, where you going? What's this car got to do?" demanded a passenger.

"Let 'er take care of herself," said Green. He added, "I can't run a car anyway. I've forgotten how to drive."

On a car in-bound to Adams square early today, the conductor was a nickel emergency badge, number 1. There were twenty or more people on the car.

The register for cash fares, blank—"Oh," was all they had to say. A passenger got angry. "What's your name?" he demanded.

"Are you a director?" queried the conductor.

The passenger didn't reply, but made a note of the conductor's number. Two policemen on the car never carried a smile.

Four conductors on early cars got off at Adams square were the round white ladies, bearing the words "We Walk for Justice."

Firebug Sets Blaze at 6:15—as Usual

North End Incendary Again Startles Police and Department by Starting Flames in Tenement.

Another 6:15 a. m. fire was started by the North End street today. The fire was in a pile of rubbish in the basement of a four-story brick dwelling at No. 249 Commercial street.

The North End firebug has been a terror to the department and a wit-to-the police for many years. His habits are pretty well established.

He always starts the fire just at 6:15 a. m.

He always chooses the basement of a tenement or a dwelling for his operations.

He always starts the blaze by piling kindling and exorbitant in the basement.

And he always escapes without leaving any good lead to his identity. The result is that about 6 o'clock every morning in the North End firehouse, the firemen begin to listen for the first clanging of the bell.

At a street car accident yesterday, someone angrily demanded of the motorman, "Are you one of the strike-breakers?"

"No, I'm a company-wrecker," he answered.

His car had just jumped the track and come within an ace of plunging fifty people over the Broadway bridge.

On an in-bound Cambridge car, there were sixteen passengers while the register showed only thirteen fares.

One passenger called the conductor's attention to the discrepancy. The man with an emergency badge on his cap, looked at the register in dismay.

"Now what son of a gun went and rung up those fares?" he demanded.

At Central square, a crowd of women waited thirty minutes for a car. When it came, they finally pulled in, there was room for only a few.

The conductor was accommodating. "Pile in ladies," said he, making room and get acquainted. Have your nickles ready.

The "ladies" piled in between the seats and the car went on its way.

It happened on a Cambridge car last evening. The car was crowded, but the driver didn't show it.

Two curious young men counted nineteen passengers. The conductor had generally pulled in twenty-two.

The conductor took a dime, handed back a nickel and pulled the twenty-third fare. The passengers cheered.

Police inspectors report that the strike has attracted many pickpockets.

A conductor on a Broadway-South Boston car passed a transfer to a passenger without the time being punched. His attention was called to the fact.

"Well, he didn't see the foot," said the conductor.

"Why not?" said the passenger. "I am spending the nickel."

"Well, if I punch the time you may have to wait a long time for a car, and as it stands now it is good any time," replied the conductor.

"Fine," said the passenger, "give me a couple more for tomorrow."

"Sure," said the conductor.

MISS HARRIMAN IN A RUNAWAY; JUMPS

NEWBURGH, N. Y., June 14.—From Irishman comes a story of a narrow escape from serious injury in New York. The man, the youngest daughter of Mrs. E. H. Harriman. She had taken a polo pony out on one of the private drives for a practice jump. The pony ran away. Mrs. Harriman jumped from her saddle to the ground, escaping with a few bruises.

Comes from Japan at 76 to Cast First Vote

Commodore Swain a Bit Mixed on the Situation, but He Seems to Be a Republican.

Commodore Richard Swain arrived on the White Star liner Cymric today, coming clear from Japan to cast his first vote for President at the ripe age of seventy-six.

The commodore was undecided whether to vote for Taft or Roosevelt. When told that the Chicago convention is supposed to reduce the choice to one candidate he was a bit puzzled.

"I've been in the auxiliary service of the Japanese navy since I was a young man," said he, "and I've never been at my old home in Nantucket to vote. I like Roosevelt, but Taft is a good man, too. I don't know which I'll vote for."

He was reminded that the convention will probably make the choice. "Well, I don't understand it very well, I guess," said the commodore. "From what I have heard and what I see in the European papers it seemed as though Taft and Roosevelt were the candidates. The fact is that although I've always maintained my American citizenship, I've never been home to vote for a President."

On Japanese policies, especially the colonizing of Macedonia, Bay territory in lower California, the commodore is silent.

Commodore Swain is accompanied by Mrs. Swain, who was an American girl and who has shared his seafaring life in Pacific waters. They will go to the commodore's old home in Nantucket for the summer and fall.

BROCKTON, June 14.—John H. Bullock, a piano mover, living at No. 87 Thatcher street, is held under $4,000 bonds for a hearing tomorrow in connection with the death of his friend, Anna B. Eaton, who lives near Bullock on the same street.

The story of his death as told by the police is: Bullock climbed on Bullock's wagon on one of the streets of Brockton, and, being slightly under the influence of liquor, began to abuse his friend. Bullock told him to get off. Eaton refused. Bullock, the police say, picked up a loose board from the bottom of the wagon and knocked the other man to the street.

PLAN CARL GREEN SOCIETY CAREER

NEW YORK, June 14.—To train the American boy for society as a "casser," to deliberately educate him for the position of a modern Charles Darnley, to surround him with tutors who will teach the science of pleasure, the science of elegance and the art of doing nothing—that is the task which Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lehr are attempting, if a report of their plans is true. The boy in the case is, of course, young "Jack" Darnley, the son of Mrs. Lehr, by her former marriage.

The young man was in Cambridge preparing to enter Harvard last fall, when he began to show a tendency to spend his time in a casual shop where a certain Miss Hobbs dispensed sweetmeats and snuff. Mrs. Lehr heard of this over in Europe and rushed across the Atlantic to enter her son's career at Harvard and urge him to foreman where he could be under the eye of his uncle, the fashionable. This was "marriage on one's feet" as the French would say, and the future "Darnley."

Church? Not for "Jack." At Fordham he developed a marked interest in the study of medicine. It is said the report reached his nearest kindred and steps were taken to turn his interest to other than professional lines. Just a few days before he was to join his mother at the Ritz in 1909, there were rumors that he had told his friends he intended to devote his life to the church. This idea was refuted by a friend, who predicted that "Jack" would not be a priest, but a doctor. Darnley, he said, "from the families on both sides are good Catholics, but this young man will take his place in society, not in the church. His mother objected strenuously to his becoming a physician, but that she could not have a thorough education, but that she had not her heart on schooling him for the life of leisure that befits his wealth and position."

There was a time, too, when he showed a tendency to take up electrical engineering. Both his mother and grandmother opposed that plan.

Place at Newport. Shortly after the return of Mr. and Mrs. Lehr to America, which is expected during the early fall, they will announce their plans for the building of an elaborate palace at Newport. Mrs. Lehr, of course, expects her son to take up his abode in that social capital of the "four hundred."

Within less than a year young Darnley will step into the first of several residences which he will eventually receive. This first installation will come from his grandmother's estate. He will also take possession of two houses and valuable real estate in Philadelphia from the estate of his grandmother, who was Elizabeth Darnley.

Olympic Athlete's Romance Newly-Wed on American Team

V. S. BLANCHARD OF THE B. A. A. AND HIS BRIDE

NEW YORK, June 14.—When the stately Finland sailed down the bay today bearing on it the athletes who are to uphold the honor of the United States at the Olympic games at Stockholm, a diminutive figure, clad in white, watched it, waving a handkerchief of the most rare until the ship was lost to sight. She was Mrs. Vaughn S. Blanchard, wife of the athlete, who is now on his way to the Olympic games.

There is a romance flowing through the marriage, as the well-known bride has admitted. "You see," she said, "there is a rule at Bates that an athlete who is married can receive a diploma. Now of course it has got over that we are married, but we kept it secret for a long time, and so long as we could, for some one gave us away. When it was I don't know if it ever found out he was a piece of my mind."

Mrs. Blanchard came to New York with her husband, who competes in the 100-yard dash at the Olympic games at Stockholm. It is said she would like to go over to Stockholm where she could see her husband perform and cheer him on to victory. But she is a philosophical little woman, her college training making her think for a moment that she is a Bates student also. She will remain at home and be comforted by her husband for a short time. "Newly-weds need all the money they can get, you know," she said softly when asked why she wasn't going over too.

GIRLS IN COURT AT AUTO TRIAL

Miss Emily Gilman of Woburn and Miss Ida Perkins of Providence will witness the trial of Paul M. Taylor of Worcester on the charge of operating an automobile recklessly and of driving away without stopping after having been arrested.

Taylor was tried last January for manslaughter. The jury acquitted him. Taylor was the first appearance of Miss Gilman and Miss Perkins in this trial. They arrived at the courthouse last afternoon, escorted by the father of one of the girls.

Mr. Higgins, who owns and operates an auto, questioned Taylor. Taylor said that he was not driving his car any thirty miles an hour, but that the accident was caused by the other car getting into his.

Taylor admitted that he left an auto practically motionless from where it was, having been so since he had been told by the defendant's witness that he had been told to stop.

Former District Attorney Tailor, Taylor's counsel, suggested that his client should left hands with the juror on the latter could rest his grip. Higgins said he had no objection to the defendant's witness hands with the jury, but this was not done.

"Snake Dance" With Touring Car of $150

Jeffrey Taylor, wealthy Harvard Student Fined for Washington Street Stunts.

Jeffrey Taylor, aged sixteen, a wealthy Harvard student, whose home is in New York, was today fined $150 for doing a "snake dance" with his touring car around the support of the elevated structure on Washington street last night. He appealed and was allowed to go on his personal recognizance. Judge Parsons said:

"On account of your youth, Taylor, I am going to let you off with a fine, but I am disposed to give you a heavy all-around sentence for so reckless a bit of conduct. I hope it will be a lesson to you."

LILLIAN BRIDE IF T. R. WON

CHICAGO, June 14.—An interesting story of how A. R. Moore secured a promise of Lillian Russell's hand comes from this city, where the indiscreet is attending the Republican National Convention. It is quoted as saying that she promised to marry him if Russell was nominated. Mr. Moore confessed he had "cut the champagne" until after the Colonel's nomination.

At a meeting of Roosevelt delegates in the Flamingo room of the Congress Hotel, "Bill" Finn, the Pittsburgh Pressman, introduced Moore, saying: "Mr. Moore's name may get married lately, but I think he will consent to tell us how he proposed to cut the champagne."

"Three cheers for Lillian," exclaimed one of the more enthusiastic Rooseveltites when Mr. Moore arose, shouting:

"Thank you," began Mr. Moore, bowing prettily after telling how he and "Bill" did cut the champagne in Pittsburgh. Moore continued to yell.

By the way, I owe more to Colonel Roosevelt than I feel like telling. You see it was this way. Lillian said to me, 'If Colonel Roosevelt is nominated I'll marry you.'

"It's a go," said I, knowing that the Colonel was sure to land and that Lillian was as good as mine when she made that promise. Well, the days went on and finally Lillian and I concluded there was no real use in waiting any longer. Colonel Roosevelt was absolutely assured of the nomination, so we called the minister."

Buying Money Orders Payable to Selves

Suspicious That Men with Nickels, Dimes and Quarters Are Strike-Breakers.

A rush of men to the Boston Postoffice with anywhere from $10 to $100 in nickels, dimes and quarters which they desire to exchange for money orders payable to themselves at New York, has raised suspicion in the minds of the clerks that the applicants are strike-breaking conductors on the elevated.

A number of men have come to the postoffice in the past few days asking: "How can I send money to myself in New York?" They say they might wish to cash the money orders in New York at any time. One applicant paid for a $10 order with small change. The postoffice makes a safe depositary for a strike-breaking conductor who has more fare than he carries to carry around with him.

CRAZED BY SLEEPING TOO NEAR ELEVATED

GEORGETOWN, R. I., June 14.—Sleeping too close to elevated trains in New York was ascribed by Isador Greenberg of that city as the cause of the continued mental state which led to his being committed to an insane hospital here today. Greenberg told the authorities he thought officers were following him. Last night he observed a stone wall in the street and around himself with an iron bar. When DuSable Hospital approached to investigate Greenberg attacked him.

$25,000 BLAZE IN NORTH ATTLEBORO

NORTH ATTLEBORO, June 14.—A two-story live early today destroyed a portion of the large Gould block and spread to the Columbus block in the center of the town, causing a loss estimated at $25,000. Five persons living in tenements in the Gould block were awakened by the fire. One person was injured, but not seriously. The fire, which started in the rear of the Gould block, was quickly destroyed, damage to the Kulpis of Columbus block in the Columbus block next door amounted to $10,000.

DIVORCES HIS WIFE; WEDS MOTHER-IN-LAW

STERLING, N. J., June 14.—Frank Healy, forty-five who was granted a divorce from his wife, May Filla Healy, has been married to Mrs. Jane Filla, his mother-in-law, fifty-eight. The divorce was granted on the grounds of desertion, and was not contested, although it was said to be the result of a quarrel between Healy's infatuation for his mother-in-law.

OFFERED A MILLION, BUT DIED OF CANCER

COLUMBUS, O., June 14.—Dr. L. M. Early is dead from cancer. He had earlier offered $1,000,000 for a cure. When his cancer discovered the X-ray Dr. Early began experiments with it for cancer, and finally controlled the disease. While still experimenting with the X-ray, Dr. Early learned how to make a new photographic negative. The Eastman interests took his discovery for a sum said to be $500,000.

GENERAL BOOTH, 82, BLIND, IS SUEED

DRESDEN, June 14.—General Booth, the famous eighty-two-year-old blind chief of the Salvation Army, is the defendant in a libel action which will come to trial here in a few days. The association of Dresden bar, cafe and saloon proprietors complains that the War Cry libeled it.

Miss Sears Only Hope of East

Boston Girl Fitted Against San Francisco in National Tennis Tournament at Philadelphia.

MISS ELEONORA SEARS

PHILADELPHIA, June 14.—Miss Eleonora Sears of Boston, known as the only "white hope" of the East in the women's national tennis tournament, the finals of which will be played at the Philadelphia Cricket Club Grounds tomorrow.

Miss Sears was forced out into the open as the last resource of the East when Miss Mary Brown of California de-

Beauty—real beauty—is more than skin deep. No cosmetic in the world can give the wholesome color, the bright eyes, the clear, transparent skin that is the natural result of pure blood, proper diet and hygienic habits of daily life.

It sounds easy and it is easy for a woman to have the beauty which health alone can give. A safe and efficient tonic if the blood is weak, thin or impure (Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are especially recommended), the avoidance of foods which will cause eruptions, and regular bathing of the skin. That is all and it is the only way.

Write to the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Box 178, Schenectady, N. Y., for a free booklet, "How to Get the Best Out of Your Skin." It is a booklet that perfectly answers little book and should be read by every woman and growing girl. A free sample of the new "Pink Pills" will also be sent. Should you be unable to obtain Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People in your locality they will be sent postpaid on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes for $2.50.

GIVE 'SHERWOOD' AT WELLESLEY

The last exercises of Commencement Week at Wellesley open tonight with the regular performance of the Senior play—'Sherwood'.

The play has been given once, as dress rehearsal. Tonight is the regular performance. Tomorrow comes 'Vivian's Party,' Sunday is 'Roxbury,' and on Tuesday the graduation exercises are held in the Rhododendron Hollow, near the library. 'Sherwood' is an adaptation of the story of Robin Hood. It is presented in the audience sitting on camp chairs or on the grassy slopes. Miss Mary Brown of California de-

HAMILTON FISH, 66, to Marry Widow, 57

NEW YORK, June 14.—Hamilton Fish, aged sixty-six, is to marry a second time. He has obtained a license in and Mrs. Florence Austin, aged fifty-seven, of No. 810 Fifth avenue. The ceremony will take place June 22 at the bride's home.

He is the youngest son of the Hamilton Fish who was Secretary of State in 1850 and later Governor of New York State. He entered public life by becoming his father's secretary. In 1875 he was made assistant clerk of the staff of Governor Fish. He was elected to the Assembly for several terms and in 1892 was appointed assistant United States Treasurer, resigning in 1908 to run for Congress. Mrs. Austin is the widow of the late Gustave Austin. This is his third marriage. She has no children. One of her sisters is the wife of a prominent lawyer, managing director of the White Star Line.

She was the AMERICAN everywhere in the homes, clubs, restaurants, hotels, cars and boats.

CITY POST FOR HELEN KELLER

SCHENECTADY, June 14.—It was announced at the office of Mayor Lusk that Miss Helen Keller, the deaf and blind author of 'The Story of My Life,' would be appointed to the position of a member of the Board of Public Welfare.

Miss Keller will make her home when she arrives in Schenectady with Mrs. John M. Mark, since her father, Miss Keller's mother, will pass the summer with Mrs. Mark at their Westchester home or in the Berkshires.

Women Bar Meat Until Prices Drop

Two hundred Maine women, members of the Ladies' Branch of the Workers' Circle will buy no more meat, other than beef and chicken, until the prices are lowered.

Mrs. Anne Finkelson, who leads the movement, and a committee of ten women, women elected since in Maine and several notices that if the prices of meat were not lowered before next Monday morning the Jewish women of the city would trade elsewhere.

At a mass meeting in Finkelson Hall, of which more than 400 were present, Mrs. M. Hoffman of Boston proposed the protest.

She said that the continual increase in the prices of necessities were the result of the high-handed methods of the dealers. There was no opposition to the decision to send a committee to the stores.

A committee also has made a similar house canvass asking for the support of Maine's 100,000 Jewish citizens.

A Thousand Suits a Minute

*In All New England
No Other Sight Like This:*

Between 7,000 and 8,000 suits—carefully hung in dust-proof, crystal glass cases, all on one great floor, where the whole may be seen within five minutes—almost at a glance. It's a revelation to the man who's never been here—gives him a better conception of our business and facilities and a new angle on Good Clothes at Right Prices. Lookers are welcome as buyers. No man is ever button-holed or urged in this Great Store.

Kuppenheimer Suits

—lead all others because they're tailored better and hold their shape better. We're certain of the dependability of Kuppenheimer fabrics, linings, etc.—certain that they give you the best service. For these reasons alone we urge you to wear Kuppenheimer Clothes. It's a matter of pride and policy with us—of economy, improved appearance and greater satisfaction to you.

Good Low Priced Suits

We sell so many good low priced suits that we figure profit on volume instead of individual sales. This can't be done by stores that sell dozens instead of hundreds, as we do. We give you full value in the worth of the clothes, eliminating the high expense of small business. Every garment looks to be worth $3 to $5 more than we ask—and they're as good as they look.

$12.50 and $15.00

Our splendidly hand-tailored suits at $25, $27.50, $30 to $35 are impressive object lessons to those men who have become addicted to the high-priced, made-to-measure habit. It is not possible to produce better suits than these.

Norfolks to $22.50—Blue Serges to $30

We have never found it necessary to follow anybody's lead in offering so-called bargains. You'll find that at whatever price you see clothes marked elsewhere, you can always come to this Live Store and do better.

CAPT. SYLVIE WHALEN IS DEAD, AGED 69

Captain Sylvie Whalen, Sr., known all through the New England fishing trade as "Syvie" Whalen, died early today from heart failure at his home, No. 40 East Newton street, South End. He was sixty nine years old. He started as a sailor hand from T. Whelan as a boy and accumulated a fortune estimated along the water front as high as half a million dollars. A few years after he started from the wharf he was master of a vessel. Then he bought a share in it. Then he saved more money and bought shares in other vessels till, in the end, he owned or held controlling interest in a fishing fleet.

MORE LIFEBOATS FOR SOUND STEAMERS

Although the number of lifeboats carried by the Fall River Line and other Sound steamships plying under New Haven flag and under license from the U. S. Coast Guard, has been determined to make these steamships absolutely safe from the lifeboat supply standpoint, Captain H. G. Nickerson, general manager, says: "This company has appropriated $250,000 to install lifeboat equipment for the steamers of its various lines. There will have to be cut away much of the promenade deck which is especially used by passengers during the summer season, and we are making these alterations now."

TUFTS SENIORS IN CLASS DAY

Tufts College seniors today celebrated their Class Day festivities on the Hill in West Medford.

The day's program opened at 9 in the morning with "Last Chapel" for the seniors. The exercises were conducted by President F. W. Hamilton of the college. There followed exercises in the chapel at 11, when the address of welcome was given by the president of the senior class, Arthur J. Anderson of South Manchester, Ct. Kenneth S. Symonds of Medford delivered the valedictory. Miss Pauline Lampey read the class poem.

The exercises in the chapel closed with the class song, the music of which was composed by W. W. Rose, and the valedictory address by Miss H. Bradford.

Fraternity exercises came at noon. There was a public dinner at Goddard gym. At 2:30 the class gathered for the tree exercises. The oration was delivered by Harold R. Pines of Acton. William S. March by read the class history. Ernest A. Fairbanks of Middlebury made the presentation. There was a band concert scheduled to follow. A class club concert on the Museum steps was scheduled for 7:30, followed by a dance in Goddard gym.

460 GRADUATE FROM THE QUINCY SCHOOLS

Four hundred and sixty boys and girls, a record number were graduated today from the Quincy schools. The exercises were held in the High School. Assistant Superintendent of Schools Jeremiah E. Burke of Boston delivered an address. Four hundred and twenty-two graduates have secured for a secondary education. Twelve, to lack of seating capacity in the school hall, were unable to secure tickets to the exercises and witnessed the graduation of their children.

N. SALLINGER MAKES A AGREEMENT WITH BEST CLOTHING MAKERS

TO SELL THEIR CLOTHING ON CREDIT

$1.00 A WEEK

N. SALLINGER—Proprietor Peoples Credit Co.

I have entered into an agreement with the Biggest and Best Makers of Men's Clothing in America to sell their high-grade Men's Clothing on credit, and I have agreed not to charge one cent more for their clothing than is charged by the cash stores who handle these famous brands. I have no make of clothing of my own to foist upon the public. I will not sell a man a suit that is not as well known to him as it is to me.

No man need now pay his whole week's salary for clothes—neither is he compelled to go to a cheap credit house and pay an outrageous profit for an inferior credit house brand of clothing.

The agreement is complete and absolute. You are fully protected.

Only agreement of its kind ever made in the United States. Under its provisions the public is allowed to purchase through the Peoples Credit Co. the Best Brands of Clothing on Credit—Remember the Peoples Credit Co. is the only Credit concern in New England that sells on credit the Famous Brands of Clothing that have been advertised nationally and locally in the newspapers and magazines.

What is your opinion of a credit arrangement that will allow you to purchase on credit at cash prices any of the following well-known brands of high grade men's clothing, all containing the labels of the reputable makers and not the labels of a cheap credit house?

ALLOWANCE 10 CTS., SAYS WIFE

W. her salary of six dollars a week who was allowed ten cents a week by her husband, Frank L. Lewis, his young wife, Mrs. Addie M. Lewis, told Judge J. J. Connelley in the divorce court. She is suing her husband on the grounds of non-support.

She was employed in a store until within four months of the time her child was born, according to her story, and her husband came around every week to collect her pay. She was married when only about fifteen years old and has one child.

The girl's mother thought that a letter written by her daughter had been written by Lewis, and that he was getting a trap for his wife.

Joseph W. Kelley, the father of Mrs. Lewis, said that her husband paid little attention to her at the time the baby was born, and went out every night after supper. He said that he provided little food for the house.

Mrs. Kelley testified that her daughter's health failed after her marriage, that she had little food, that her home was not fit for habitation. Lewis, she said, spent his money having and struck his wife when she objected.

Mrs. Lewis said that she gave her husband money with which to go to New York, and that she had remained with him because of the baby. She said that her husband was ashamed to ride in the same part of the car with her when they visited her parents.

Lewis, when called to the stand late in the afternoon, said that he lived at No. 38 Bowdoin street, and that he is employed by a mercantile house in Boston at a salary of $10 a week.

NOW WHO IS THE PRINCESS?

By THE PRINCESS EDITOR.

"A Maiden's Tangle." That's what it will mean to the Princess Central.

Just imagine, girls, how it would seem to be able to walk into any store in Boston, select from among the hundreds of beautiful gowns the one that pleases your fancy and say to the saleslady: "Send the bill to the Boston AMERICAN."

Girls, that's the power of Aldine's amp brought right up to date.

And that is only a beginning. The Princess of New England can continue her search for beautiful things and use the same magic word to purchase any dress, cloak, any stunning hat of the milliner's latest creation, any delightful lingerie, any shoes, any stockings, and any personal toilet "junk."

And the same power will be invoked to furnish splendid trunks and suitcases longed for by 750 other girls, who will be elected, by popular vote, the "Princess Girls in New England."

That Bermuda Trip. Bermuda—that all-year-around summer resort of the well-to-do—avoids some two candidates who will, after the votes are counted, select each a friend and journey on a pleasure trip to this island of dreams. The stay at Bermuda at one of the finest hotels will be sufficient to allow the enjoyment of all its scenery at pleasure.

One trip to Baltimore, one trip to New York, one trip to Paris, and many other gifts await the Princess winners.

And all of these things at the expense of the Boston AMERICAN.

The campaign is now on in full swing. It starts with yourselves, candidates, as to the final results.

Thrust activity from now until July 1st is the price of victory.

Take account of what you need! If your position in the list is not what it should be, you can easily remedy it.

Get the Votes. The remedy is votes—lots of them—and they are yours "for the asking."

The polls are again open for the vote list which will appear Sunday, June 23. Right right now is the time to be for the list. Last week is gone. Start fresh now and see if you can't get double the votes you got last week.

Don't delay a minute. The rewards are too valuable to permit of any inaction.

Miss Mildred Libby of No. 45 Greenough street, Dorchester, who is a very popular young woman in the Franklin Field section of Dorchester, objects to who are out with flying colors.

At any hour of the day in Winter, Miss Libby can be seen gliding over the smooth surface at Franklin Field and in the summer is a close follower in tennis and bowling on the green.

BREEN REFUSES TO RESIGN FROM LAWRENCE BOARD

LAWRENCE, June 14.—John T. Breen, a member of the School Committee and the son of an ex-Mayor, who was recently found guilty in connection with the planting of dynamite in the textile strike, refuses to resign from office, although petitioners to recall him have been circulated throughout the city by the Central Labor Union, the Inter-Church Union and the Ministers' Association.

Twenty-five hundred signatures are necessary to have a new election, but those in charge of the recall movement claim they will have that many within a few days.

SELECT SHOES WITH MEASURED STICK

KANSAS CITY, June 14.—The old method of selecting shoes with a measured stick is being renewed here. It started when a customer came into one of the stores with a piece of wood six or eight inches in length and selected a pair of shoes by it. The plan of buying shoes looks old-fashioned, but not many years ago many of the farmers with big families bought all their shoes that way.

HURT BY BIG SIGN FALLING ON HEAD

Although a sign weighing a quarter of a ton fell from a height of forty feet upon his head, Harold Woodman, fifty, of Cambridge, was not slightly injured. The accident occurred in front of No. 4 on No. 14 Portland street. He was knocked unconscious, but quickly recovered.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., June 14.—One of the best college games of the season here was on the deck for this afternoon when Brown took on Cornell in the second battle of the series between these contenders for the championship. Smith and Warner will do the mound work in today's game. In the game at Alfred, the Brown men got only two safeties, one each by the Nash brothers. Warner is regularly getting the reputation of being an iron man. After declaring victory over Harvard and Amherst, in which he was stronger in the games against Cornell men than any other player in the Ivy League, he only got three safeties in last month's game, but they came when the team was in the middle of a losing streak and his supporters are looking for another demonstration with the willow leaf.

Every step to consider what the Smiths, Joneses, Brownes, Brownes, O'Briens, O'Briens and a few other players of the same name have done for baseball? There have been players of these and other familiar names in the game since the first game was played. Many in no way superior, but resulting in a game that was a famous game to the world. Take the Smiths. There was Charles Smith, the old time pitcher, and a cracker-jack one; George Smith, the second baseman; Charles Smith, the first baseman; J. Smith, 1.b. pitcher, and Frank Smith, 2.b. pitcher. The first baseman for Harvard, back in '94, was Charles Smith, who played for the Boston Red Sox, the Brooklyn Dodgers, and the St. Louis Cardinals.

The Joneses, too, are numerous. They include Charles, Harry, Jimmy, W. D. and P. Jones, all outfielders of bygone or modern times. Tom, the first baseman; Oscar Jones, the first baseman; and Bumpus Jones, all pitchers.

James E. Sullivan, the United States Commissioner to the Olympic Games, has written the following article specially for the Boston GLOBE. Mr. Sullivan is considered the highest authority on the sport for the Olympic Games. Mr. Sullivan writes of America's prospects for the sixth revival of the classic Olympic games.

America will win the track and field championship of the world at the Swedish Olympic games next month. There is no intention of appearing best or even confident in making this assertion. It is simply a plain statement of fact.

Never before has this country gathered a team for the Olympic games that is so well equipped with record breakers. The American team, which is the best ever, is made up of the best athletes in the country. They are all record holders in their respective events. The American team is the best ever, and they will win the Olympic games.

Victorious Teams in Past World Have No Chance Against the Present Squad.

London, and from the latest report, it is just as true. I have seen the American team, and I am looking forward to the day when they will win the Olympic games. They are the best team ever, and they will win the Olympic games.

Good Distance Men. In the distance race we have a team that is the best ever. They are all record holders in their respective events. The American team is the best ever, and they will win the Olympic games.

For the first time since the Olympic games were first held, the American team is the best ever. They are all record holders in their respective events. The American team is the best ever, and they will win the Olympic games.

A Mysterious Disappearance

One of the Greatest Detective Stories Ever Written

By Gordon Holmes

TODAY'S INSTALLMENT.

PART I (Continued).

"MORRISON" shouted the bartender. "A youngster, you say?"
and Sir Charles bounded up right in his excitement.
"Why, yes, a man of twenty-two,
no more than twenty-eight. I can swear, do you know him?"
"Albert Morrison?"
"That's the man, beyond doubt."
Dyer had poured out some whiskey and hot water and swallowed it. Then he spoke, with a faint smile: "You didn't know, Henry," he said, "that you vividly described the attempted self-murder of a man I have intimately known."

Schoolboys Together

"What an extraordinary thing! Yet I never remember hearing you mention his name."
"Probably not. I have hardly seen him since my marriage. We were schoolboys together, though I was so much his senior that we did not play together until late, when we met a good deal on the turf. Then he went off, roughing it in the States. It must be he. It is just one of his friends.
And he is going to marry, eh? Is she a nice girl?"
The baronet was thoroughly excited. He talked fast, and helped himself liberally to stimulants.

"Yes, unusually so. But I cannot help marveling at this coincidence. It has amused you."
"Not a bit. I was interested in your past, and naturally I was surprised that the startling fact that an old friend of mine lived the quiet part. What a fellow you are, Claude, for always turning up at the right time. I have never been in a tight place personally, but if I were I suppose you would come along and save me the worst of it. Sit down again and give me all the details. I am full of curiosity."
Claude had never before seen Sir Charles in such a hysterical mood. The anguish of the past three months had changed the careless, jovial baronet into a fervid, war-ward being, who had lost control of his emotions. Undoubtedly he required some powerful tonic. The baronet reached to see more of him in the future, and not to keep saying him until he had arrived on a long sea voyage, or taken up some hobby that would keep him busy for months upon the prevailing topic of his wife's strange death.

Inspector White's face plainly showed his disappointment when he heard the barrister was not at home.

The barrister laughed as he went to his room. "Really," he said to himself, still lightly amused, "White will cap all his previous feats by trying to arrest me. I suspect he has thought of it for a long time."

And Mr. White had thought of it.
Who Corbett Was.
"UNEXORABLE Fate!" is a favorite phrase with the makers of books, but Fate, being feminine according to the best authorities, is also somewhat fickle in disposition. Not only is she not invariably inescapable, but at times she delights to play with her poor subjects, to exasperate them with mystery, as it were, instead of them with the sense of their sheer inequality to foresee or understand her vagaries.

It was Bruce's turn to receive the sharpest lesson in this respect that he ever experienced.

At breakfast the next morning he was selected from a parcel of unimportant letters on which required immediate attention. The barrister to whom he had written in conformity with his implied promise to Mr. Dodge had replied favorably with reference to the reconstruction of the Springfield Mine.

Meeting the Broker
They informed Bruce confidentially that a thoroughly reliable man in Johannesburg, for whom they had almost reported very strongly in favor of the property. They would await his written statement before finally consulting themselves. Meanwhile, if Messrs. Dodge, Son & Co. (Limited) were anxious to get the business advanced a stage, there was no reason why he (Bruce) should not assure them that subject to the satisfactory report being received from him, his clients would underwrite the shares. The whole thing would thus go through in about three weeks. As for Bruce himself, they proposed to give him a commission of 5 per cent. in fully paid shares for the introduction.

"Well, I never!" he laughed. "Now would they have thought such a thing possible? Why, if that rascal Dodge is right and this company is really a sound undertaking, my share of the deal will be $50,000. It seems wildly incredible, yet my friends know what they are writing about as a rule."

An hour later he was in the city.
A market brougham stood in front of the now thoroughly renovated offices of Dodge, Son & Co. (Limited), and out of it, at the moment the barrister detached himself from the chaos of Londonland street, stepped the head of the firm.

Claude cried:
"Hello, Mr. Dodge! How is the broker partner?"
Dodge stopped, peered at Bruce with his sharp eyes, and smiled.
"Oh, it is you, is it? The young man is all right, thanks. Are you coming in?"

soaps now. I won't use anything but 'Welcome.'"

"There is just enough Borax used in Welcome Soap—more than in all other soaps made in New England put together. Borax softens the water, is a wonderful cleanser, and is splendid for the hands."

"I suppose, too, that's why my clothes look so white and beautiful. I didn't know what clothes whiteness was until I used 'Welcome.'"

"I get my wash out earlier nowadays than I ever did before."

"Your grocer tells it, for twice as much 'Welcome' is used in New England as any other."

"Your hands will become white and soft.
Your washing will be done better with less work.
It costs but 5c. At your grocer's."

A Mother's Work and Her Hopes

Copyright, 1912, by American Journal Examiners.

This editorial is not written FOR WOMEN. It is written for MEN, and for boys; for the millions who fail to appreciate the work that mothers do, for the millions that ignore the self-sacrifice and devotion upon which society is based.

On a hot night, in the dusty streets of a dirty city, you see hundreds of women sitting in the doorways, TAKING CARE OF BABIES.

In lonesome farm houses, far out on monotonous plains, with the late sun setting on a long day of hard work, you find women, cheerful and persevering, TAKING CARE OF BABIES.

In the middle of the night, in earliest morning, when MEN sleep, all over the world, in ice huts North, in Southern tents, in big houses and in dingy tenements, you find women awake, cheerfully and gladly TAKING CARE OF BABIES.

We respect and praise the man selfishly working for himself. If he builds up a great industry and a great personal fortune, we praise him.

If he risks his life for personal glory and for praise, we praise him. If he shows courage even in saving his own carcass from destruction, we praise him.

There was never a man whose courage or devotion could be compared with that of a woman caring for her baby.

The mother's love is unselfish, and it has no limit this side of the grave.

You will find ONE man in a thousand who will risk his life for a cause.

You will find a THOUSAND women in a thousand who will risk their lives for their babies.

Everything that a man has and is owes to his mother. From her he gets health, brain, encouragement, moral character and ALL his chances of success.

How poorly the mother's service is repaid by men individually, and by society as a whole!

The individual man feels that he has done much if he gives sufficient money and a LITTLE attention to her who brought him from nothingness into life and sacrificed her sleep and youth and strength for his sake.

Society, the aggregate of human beings, feels that its duty is done when a few hospitals are opened for poor mothers, and a little medicine dished out in cold-hearted fashion to the sick child.

Fortunately, it may be truly said that the great man is almost always appreciative of his greater mother.

Napoleon was cold, jealous of other men, monumentally egotistical when comparing himself with other sons of women. But he revered and appreciated the noble woman who bore him, lived for him and watched over him to the end. He said:

"It is to my mother, to her good principles, that I owe my success and all I have that is worth while. I do not hesitate to say that the future of the child depends on the mother."

The future of the individual child depends on the individual mother, and the future of the race depends on the mothers of the race.

Think what has been done for mankind by thousands of millions of perfectly devoted mothers.

Every mother is entirely DEVOTED, entirely HOPEFUL, entirely CONFIDENT that no future is too great for her baby's deserts.

The little head—often hopelessly ill-shaped—rolls about feebly on the thin neck devoid of muscles. The toothless gums chew whatever comes along. The wondering eyes look feebly, aimlessly about, without focus or concentration. The future human being, to the cold-blooded onlooker, is a useless little atom added to the human sea of nonentity.

But to the mother that baby is the marvel of all time. There is endless meaning in the first mummings, endless soul in the gentle, baby smile, unlimited possibilities in the knobby forehead and round, hairless head. She sees in the future of the baby responsibilities of government, and feels that one so perfectly lovely must eventually be acclaimed ruler by mankind.

As a result of perfect confidence in its future, the mother gives to every baby perfect devotion, perfect and affectionate moral education. Every child begins life inspired by the most beautiful example of altruism and self-sacrifice.

Kindness has gradually taken the place of brutality among human beings, because every baby at its birth has found itself surrounded by absolute kindness.

The mother's kindness forms moral character.

The mother's confidence and encouragement stimulate ambition and inspire courage.

The mother's patient watchfulness gives good health, and fights disease when it comes.

The mother's watchful protection shields the child from the stern and dwarfing severity of fathers.

Truly, a man may and should be judged by his feeling toward his own mother, and toward the mothers of other men—of ALL MEN.

In the character of Christ, whose last earthly thought on Golgotha was for His Mother, as in the character of the hard-working, ignorant man whose earnings go to make his mother comfortable, the most beautiful trait is devotion to the mother who suffers and works for her children, from the hours that precede their birth through all the years that they spend on earth together.

Honor thy father and THY MOTHER.

And honor the mothers of other men. Make their task easier through fair payment of the men who support the children, through good public schools for their children, through respectful treatment of ALL women.

The mother is happy. For she knows "the deep joy of loving some one else more than herself."

You honor yourself and prove yourself worthy of a good mother and of final success, when you do something for the mothers of the world.

Begin by working to GIVE WOMEN THE RIGHT TO VOTE.

The Household Pest Known as the Objector

The Great Social Problem Is the Extermination of This Creature

By DOROTHY DIX

AMONG household pests which there should be some pains, but effective way of exterminating is the Objector. Unfortunately, as the law now stands it does not permit you to consign to a lethal chamber, or use insecticide, or rough-cure on this destroyer of your peace and comfort, yet compared with the Objector, the howling of stray cats is grand opera and cockroaches and mice welcome visitors in your house.

There are few families so fortunate as not to have an Objector in their midst, and the great social problem is not how to stop divorce, but how to get rid of the ever-present affliction, for we are bound to it, as a general thing, by ties that we lack the hardihood to break.

The Objector is the damper on enthusiasm, the throttle on energy, the extraneous on ambition, the blot on pleasure, the thing that takes out the map and ginger out of us, and makes us sit down in weariness and despair and say, "Oh, what's the use?" It is the Objector who are at the bottom of most of the failures in the world, because by the time a talented and gifted man and woman have fought down the Objectors on their heartaches they are so battered and worn that they haven't enough strength left to do anything else.

We are always marvelling at some youth or maiden who stepped short at the beginning of a promising career. If they could know the truth we would generally find that he or she had an Objector in the family. They never could tell us or he had thrown so much cold water on whatever the youth or maiden was trying to do that the poor, discouraged, disheartened victim gave up in despair.

For Objectors are always a destructive force. They are never constructive. They throw a million obstacles in the way of the thing you are trying to do. They deluge you with dark blue prophecies of failure, but they never send a word of advice to how you may achieve success. Their motto is that "Waterloo is a word," but they have never a glimmer of an idea of how to better conditions.

It is a truism that hope is, of itself, an inspiration, and that the line of our achievement is our belief in our own ability. Nobody ever did anything worth while that he or she went at faint-heartedly and doubtfully. To doubt our ability is to do nothing but to precipitate failure. The Objectors know this, and get very anxious to keep you from the pleasure of the pleasure of their own new creation.

The queer thing about the Objector is that he or she never has any real reason behind his or her objections. And if you had happened to do the other way he or she would have been just a word of advice to keep the conduct. Probably Objectors don't even know why they object themselves. They are only actuated by some obscure and maladjusted impulse that makes them enjoy taking the edge off of your enjoyment or dulling your enthusiasm.

To my mind the sublime heroism of which human nature is capable is never more marvellously illustrated than in the fortitude with which we endure the Objector, for few indeed are they who escape having to put up with one.

Sometimes the Objector is a husband and father who victimizes to his family an eternal "Oh." Does the wife cook a good dinner? Husband finds fault with the seasoning, and wants to know why she had beef instead of mutton, and a pie instead of a cake. Does the wife want a new dress? Husband berates her for her extravagance. Has the wife accepted an invitation for them for the evening? Husband queries about going out. Does wife want to stay at home? Husband insists on going to the theatre. Does wife want to go and see one play? Nothing will please husband but going to see something else. Does wife want to go on a little visit or a trip somewhere? Husband brings forward ten thousand arguments against her leaving home and prophesies that she will be killed in a railroad accident, or the ship she goes on will sink.

No matter what the wife wants to do, the husband disapproves of it and objects to it until it takes all of the nerve out of every pleasure.

And it's the same way with the children. If Tom wants to go to work, father insists on his going to college. If Tom wants to study medicine, father objects to his being a railroad accident, or the ship she goes on will sink.

At any rate, let us each examine ourselves and see that we are not making life miserable for somebody else by being an Objector.

NIGHTFALL

By FRANCES TYRRELL GILL

WITHIN, the heart's unrest, the strife of brain!

Out there—the fall of evening near—

The veil of noiseless, cold, persistent rain;

Above, unspooled by any tear,

One golden space in all that waste of gray;

And, somewhere, one untroubled bird,

Singing on her thankful song for night or day;

Whereat the low wind, list'ning, stirred

The dusk with some heart-knocking refrain.

Then all things were as voices bent—

The rain that knew it had to fall,

The wind that answered to the rain,

The bird so sure of love thro' all!

To bring, in all its full intent,

The meaning I had missed all day,

Something hid the turmoil cease;

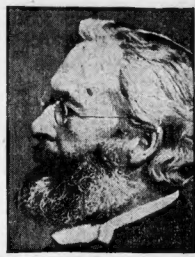

Things stayed, and yet had passed away,

And in my soul was peace!

—AND—
The Death of
"English
Jack"

Written for the American by

DR. C. H. PARKHURST

IT does not take a great deal to make a man comfortable if there is no one living nearby that is more comfortable.

What makes us dissatisfied is not that we have so little, but that somebody else has more.

When I was a boy almost the entire amount of spending money that was put into my hands was for the purchase of a bunch of firecrackers to fire off on the Fourth of July.

That, with two or three glasses of Sunday school lemonade, was enough to convert the day into one of superlative delight.

The only check put upon my enjoyment was the fact that my neighbor's boy had two bunches of firecrackers when I had only one.

That odd bunch was the fly in the ointment.

Seventy-five per cent. of the people that are complaining of their condition would be perfectly contented, would think of nothing better, and would praise the Lord for His goodness, were it not that the odd 25 per cent. have houses that are bigger, clothes that are finer, and do not have to figure closely in order to make ends meet.

If that twenty-five had the facilities of life dropped to the level of those of the seventy-five, the twenty-five would be the only unhappy ones left; for to have and not have is worse than never to have had at all.

We Are Tormented by Somebody Else Having More Than We

There is then a great deal in such a town as this to destroy the satisfaction that people in less favored conditions would otherwise take in their smaller comforts.

A very plain and diminutive house offers a great deal more to the contentment of the occupant than did the sort of dwellings that housed our ancient forbears living in the German forests, but the small and ill-adapted house no longer satisfies because there are other houses nearby that are neither small nor ill-adapted.

The crowd of what others have over what we have torments us more than what we have gratifies us.

It may be foolish, but we are made in that way.

By that means all our elegant shop windows are an affliction to the humbly clad.

Plain clothes may be respectable, but sufficient to keep out the cold and answer all the purposes for which clothing was primarily designed, but becomes to us a source of annoyance and humiliation when the apparel of others is so superior in quality and in elegance as to be a conspicuous reflection upon the cheapness and unbecomeliness of our own.

The poor have a good many things to be unhappy over that the rich probably think very little about.

However tolerable conspicuous elegance in dress may be in the home, in the concert chamber, or even on the street, there is one place where it is unattractive and unbecomingly in the church. English congregations are far better behaved in that respect than our own.

There is one place above all others where inequalities in human condition and circumstance should be ignored and forgotten.

gotten that place is the house of God.

THE papers have just been recording the death of English Jack, the old Crawford hermit.

Existed in Old Shack in Woods Back of Road

I have very often passed the old shack where he existed—rather than lived—and which was situated in the woods a little way back from the carriage road which the railroad at a short distance above Crawford "Noah," as one descends toward Intervale and North Conway.

Repeated calls upon him last Sunday also afforded me a degree of acquaintance with him, as much perhaps as he allowed to any of the numerous visitors who passed his threshold either from motives of curiosity or sympathy.

It is a relief to know that he is gone, although there is a touch of tenderness in the memory with which he follows him from the poor apology of a home where he passed so considerable a part of a lonely and desolate life.

There is a kind of romance in his history which possesses it with a sort of interest.

His thoughts he mostly kept to himself, but to a few he had communicated the main events of his life.

His hut was a one-story and a half affair, the ground floor serving as sitting room and kitchen, from which a ladder took him up into a pitiful hole in the roof where he slept.

There he existed for nearly forty years, almost half of the full term of his life.

He was born in London, left an orphan while still but a little boy.

Wandering about the streets one day, hungry and fearful, he encountered a little girl of five who had lost her father.

He helped her find him, and from that day their interests were one and indivisible.

Mary's father, named Simmonds, secured a position for the boy on his ship, and at the close of each of several voyages he made his home with Simmonds and little Mary.

Previous to his last voyage it was agreed that the two should make a home for their return.

He was gone a little over a year, and on his return he went to the school where he had placed her and found that his little companion had just died.

His heart was broken.

Spent 36 Years in Aimless, Hopeless Solitude.

He turned his back on the world and spent the remaining thirty-six years of his life in aimless, hopeless solitude.

What his thoughts were during all the lonely nights that he passed in his wretched garret nobody knows and can only conjecture.

It is all over now, and the touching romance of little Mary and old Jack adds one more to those tragedies in humble life which, though little known to the world, mean just as much to those who share in it as the most famous of the world.
